

Segregation Position Statement

Written by Disabled Peoples Organisations and Disability Representative Organisations

Easy Read

October 2020

Contents

How we will use this statement	1
Background	2
Why we need change	5
What needs to change	7

How we will use this statement

We will use this statement to tell the government that segregation must be stopped.

Segregation is when someone keeps people separate from the community.

This can happen when someone thinks some people are not equal to others.

We will talk about why segregation is wrong.

We will tell the government what they need to do to stop segregation.

Background

The Australian government has made special laws and programs for people with disability.

Some of these laws and programs can keep people with disability separate from other people.

These laws and programs are a type of segregation.

Examples of segregation are

- Special schools
- Group homes and institutions
- Workplaces that are only for people with disability

Segregation is not fair.

People with disability are not treated like everyone else.

This is called discrimination.

Discrimination happens when people with disability do not get the same choices as other people about

- what school they go to
- where they live
- where they work

This can happen because

- there is not enough money to give people with disability choices
- there are not enough services to give them choices
- the only choices they have are special programs for people with disability

Some good things have happened to improve life for people with disability.

For example Australia has

- closed lots of big residential institutions
- started the NDIS

- created the National Disability Strategy
- set up the Disability Royal Commission DRC for short

- signed the UN Convention on the Rights of People with Disability CRPD for short.

Why we need change

The CRPD says people with disability have the same human rights as everyone else.

They have the right to choose

- what school they go to
- where they live
- where they work

People with disability should not have to choose programs that separate them from other people.

People with disability have the right to be included in the community.

People with disability have the right to make decisions about their life.

Sometimes other people make decisions for them.

People with disability should be supported to make their own decisions.

The CRPD says that segregation and discrimination must stop.

What needs to change

Australian Government

The Australian government needs to know people with disability have the same rights as everyone else.

The government needs to

- listen to people with disability
- look at old laws and policies
- make new laws and policies to stop segregation
- make sure people who make policy decisions know about human rights of people with disability
- stop giving money to programs that separate people with disability from the community

The Disability Royal Commission (DRC) must say segregation is wrong.

Segregation means people with disability could be treated badly.

The DRC must say money for programs that separate people with disability has to stop.

We need the DRC to listen to people with disability.

We need new ways to make things better for people with disability.

The Australian government needs to make plans so people with disability

- are supported to make their own decisions.
- get support to have equal job opportunities
- have homes that are inclusive and accessible
- get support to go to any school

All new laws and policies must give people with disability the same rights as everyone else.

Segregation must stop.

Everyone has the right to make their own decisions.

Organisations signing this document

